

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

INDEX

TO THE

TWENTY-EIGHTH VOLUME

OF THE

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW.

A.

Absalon, Archbishop, minister of Denmark, 32.

Accentuation, Dr Webster on, 474.

Adams, John, President, exhortation contained in the peroration of his Essay on Canon and Feudal Law, 44—kind of influence exerted by, 49—letter of, to Mr Gerry on the Cincinnati, 55—Duke of Saxe-Weimar's account of his visit to, 229.

Adams, Samuel, oration of, on taking his second degree, 44.

Age, the present, its neglect of intellectual for practical pursuits, 4—exaggeration the character of the literature of, 5—want of high and pure morality among the poets of, 7.

Albany, projected rail road from Boston to, 523.

Alleghany ridge, route for crossing, by a rail road, 172—construction of a rail road across, 182.

Alphabet, method of learning, recommended by Quintilian, 497.

Amherst College, system of education proposed in, 305—doubts with regard to, 306.

Amiens, treaty of, 397—unpopularity of, in England, 400.

Amusements, certain, on the conduct of a clergyman with regard to, 509.

Animals, probable former residence of some, in water at the boiling point, 284.

Annals, American, reviewed, 480—probable influence of, on American literature, 482—several, noticed, 486.

Antiquity, nature of our admiration of, 313—causes of the superior elegance of the classical writers of, 315—not easily pointed out with certainty, 317—imperfect evidence employed in the histories of, 323 et seq.—causes of modern superiority in history over, 330—deficiency of, in the philosophy of history, 333—causes of this deficiency, 335—comparative superiority of modern times to, 338—excellence of the modes of education of, 490—difference between, and modern times, in the variety of studies, 491.

Aristocracy of England, character of, 122.

Army, American, character of the officers of, 239.

Arnold, Marbois' account of the conspiracy of, 390.

Atlantic Souvenir, 486.

Austin, James T., his Life of Gerry reviewed, 37—its character, 40—his reasons for the limited range of his work, 42.

B.

Bacon, Lord, remark of, on truth, quoted, 138—on epitomes of history, 202.

Baltimore and Ohio rail road, advantages of the direction of, 167—unfa-

- vorable aspect of the face of the country to be traversed by, 169—practicability of, ascertained, 169—the construction of, begun 170—length and general course of, 170—course of and obstructions to, from Baltimore to the Alleghany, 171—through the region of the Alleghany, 172—to the Ohio along the valley of its tributaries, 174—general direction of, to the North West, 175—circumstances enhancing the cost of the commencement of the building of, 176—anticipated cost of the first section of, 176—favorableness of the locality for the structure of, 177—principles on which the graduation of is to be adjusted, 178—manner of the construction of, 179—various impediments to, 182—locomotive power upon, 183—commissioners of, sent to England for information, 183—products of the country along the course of, 185—prospects of success of, 186.
- Bancroft*, Mr, translation of Heeren's historical works by, 186.
- Barlow*, Joel, poetical genius of, 106.
- Bishop*, etymological derivation of, 448.
- Bogotá*, Santa Fe de, taken by Bolivar, 1814, 220.
- Bolivar*, Simon, present importance and interest attached to the character of, 204—birth of, in 1783, at Caracas, 205—travels of and marriage in Europe, 205—witnesses the coronation of Napoleon, 206—takes part in the revolution of Venezuela in 1810, 206—joins the ranks of Gen. Miranda as a volunteer, 207—commands at and is forced to evacuate Puerto Cabello, 208—escapes to Carthagena on the overthrow of the patriots in Venezuela, 208—brilliant expedition of, against the Spaniards at Tenerife, 209—his rapid and splendid military successes, 210—appointed a Brigadier by the Congress of New Granada, 211—his quarrel with Castillo, 211—sets out on an expedition from New Granada against Venezuela, 213—his proclamation against the Spaniards, 215—his victories over the troops of Tiscar in the province of Barinas, 217—and delivery of Venezuela from the Spanish authority in 1813, 218—exercises the authority of Dictator, 218, but is driven again from the province by the Royalists, 219—returns to Carthagena, 219—his successful expedition against the province of Cundinamarca, 219—takes the city of Bogotá, 220—is appointed Captain General, 222—undertakes an expedition against Santa Martha, 222—is thwarted by the enmity of Castello and the opposition of the government of Carthagena, 223—lays siege to Carthagena, 224—leaves America and retires to Jamaica, 225—his assassination attempted, 225.
- Borgia*, Cardinal, friendship of for Heeren, 195.
- Boston*, Duke of Saxe-Weimar's account of his visit to, 228 et seq.
- Boyer*, Jean Pierre, President of Hayti, his early history and connexion with the affairs of Hayti, 151—his accession to the Presidency, 154—unites the whole country under his government, 156—takes possession of the Spanish part of the island, 156—his mistaken anxiety to conclude an immediate treaty with France, 157—is outwitted by the Baron de Mackau, and consents to an unfavorable arrangement with France, 161—his arrangement unpopular in Hayti, 162—and condemned in other countries, 163.
- Brainerd's* account of the difficulties attending the attempt to convert the Indians, 365.
- Briceño*, Colonel, expedition of, from New Granada, and death, 213.
- Bridges*, for rail roads, reasons for preferring wooden, 182.
- Brougham*, Mr, exertions of, in the cause of education, 296.
- Brown*, Charles Brockden, genius of, 108.
- Brynhilda*, Ode of, a Scandinavian legend, sketch of, 26.
- Byron*, Lord, Hunt's charges against, 2—placed first among the poets of his day, 10—his character, 10—notice of his writing, 12—their probable fate, 13—view of mankind as given by, 349—description of, by Pollok, 350.

C.

- Camelion*, Flint's account of the, 94.
Camp meeting in the Western country, description of, 97.
Campbell, next to Byron among modern poets, 13—his premature retirement from poetry, 14.
Cane-brake, Flint's description of, 91.
Capital, Malthus and M'Culloch on the transfer of, 369 et seq.
Carbonari in Europe, facts relating to, 61 et seq.—pretended remote origin of, 63—objects of, 63.
Carbonarist, a German, biography of, 58.
Carroll, Charles, first stone of the Baltimore and Ohio rail road laid by, 170.
Carthagera, opposition of the authorities of, to Bolivar, 222—besieged by Bolivar, 224.
Casas, Colonel Manuel Maria, base and infamous conduct of, 208.
Castillo, quarrel of with Bolivar, 211—resigns his commission, 213—consequences of his enmity to Bolivar, 222.
Chantrey, statue of Washington by, 230.
Cherokee nation, written syllabic language formed by, 501.
Christophe, emperor of Hayti, character and policy of, 153—conspiracy against, among his troops, and death, 155.
Cincinnati, society of, President Adams's letter concerning, 55.
Civilization of the Indians, 354.
Classical learning, object and effects of the acquisition of 304—tendency of new plans of education to lessen the standard of, in this country, 308.
Clay, peculiar species of, in the Mississippi Valley, 84.
Clement of Alexandria, authority of, for attributing Hebrews to St Paul.
Clergy, character and influence of, 505—Letters on the Manners and Habits of, 505—several questions with regard to the manners and conduct of, in society, considered, 509 et seq.—on the miscellaneous literature proper for, 511—on the appropriate dress of, 513—extracts from Dr Miller on manners of, in conversation, &c. 514.
Climate, diversities of, explained by a new theory of the earth, 273.
VOL. XXVIII.—NO. 63.
- Coleridge*, reputation of, as a poet, sustained by a single poem, 17.
College education, considerations on, 294 et seq.—change proposed in the plan of, 309 et seq.
Colleges in America, their diminished importance, 44.
Colombia, Restrepo's History of the Revolution in, 203.
Colonization of nations, neglect of, by historians, 202.
Columbus, Irving's Life of, reviewed, 103—belongs to the purely narrative class of historical works, 127—its excellence as to subject, 128—has the character and claim of a poem, 130—religious character of the admiral, 131.
Commerce of nations, neglect of, by historians, 202.
Continents, evidence of the rise of, from the bottom of the ocean, 277—means of determining the different ages of, 279.
Conversion of the Indians, 354.
Cordier, M. L., his Essay on the temperature of the interior of the earth, reviewed, 265—reasonings of, on the law of increase of this temperature, 267 et seq.—has succeeded in establishing the fact of such an increase, 269—his explanation of the phenomena of volcanoes, 271—application of his theory to various physical phenomena, 272 et seq.—distinction between his theory and that of Hutton, 286—application of it to the whole material universe, 291.
Correa, a Spanish royalist commander, defeated by Bolivar at Cúcuta, 210.
Course of Time, The, a poem, by Pollok, reviewed, 340—sketch of the plan of, 343.
Crawfish, injuries produced by, in the Valley of the Mississippi, 95.
Creek Indians, Duke of Saxe-Weimar's visit to, 245.
Critical skill, superiority of the moderns to the ancients in, 331.
Crystallization, sometimes the result of igneous fusion, 280.
Cúcuta, Spanish troops under Correa defeated at, by Bolivar, 210.
Cundinamarca, province of, successful ex-

- pedition of Bolivar against, 220.
Curvatures in rail roads, 181.
Cuvier, remarks of, on the theory of the earth, 285, 290.
Cypress tree of the Western states, 86—its value and inexhaustible quantity, 87.
Cyprian of Carthage, testimony of, with regard to the author of Hebrews, 140.

D.

- Dana*, Francis, performance of, at Commencement, 45.
Daubeny, explanation of volcanoes by, 288.
Definitions, nature and objects of, 378—of Malthus in Political Economy, examined, 378—of Webster's dictionary, increased number introduced, 464—their increased fulness, 465—their more accurate discrimination, 466.
Degrees, literary, the appropriate rewards of merit, 306.
Denmark, Saxo Grammaticus one of the oldest annalists of, 32—origin of the name of, 32—chronology of, attempt to settle, 33—ample materials for the history of, 36.
Dennie, genius of, 108.
Dictionary, American, of the English language, by Webster, 433—objections urged against the undertaking of, 434—Johnson's, not perfect, 435—claims of that of Webster to attention, 436—importance of etymology in, 437—examination of the etymology of Webster, 441 et seq.—number of words in, 459—extent of the vocabulary of, 460—new words introduced into, 461—definitions in, examined, 464—orthography of, 470—pronunciation, 473—accentuation, 474—the grammar appended to, 474.
Directly, unauthorized use of, in Pelham, 433.
Diseases of the Valley of the Mississippi, 85—influence of heat and moisture on the production of, 85.
Dress, of the clergy, 513.
Dress, the word, comparative etymology of, 452.
Dwight, President, poetry of, 107.

E.

- Earth*, theories of, state of opinion concerning, 265—facts with regard to the heat of the interior of, 266—fact of the increase of heat in the interior of, settled by M. L. Cordier, 269—amount and degree of the internal heat of, affords a foundation for a new theory of, 270—application of the new theory of, to the explanation of volcanoes, 271—of earthquakes, 273—and of diversities of climate, 273—mean density of, 275—Scrope's new sketch of a theory of, 281—evidences of the central heat of, 286—another new theory of, founded on phenomena produced by metallic bases, 287—application of the fact of the internal heat of, to the explanation of some of the phenomena of the heavens, 291 et seq.
Earthquakes, identity of the causes of, with those of volcanoes, 273.
Edda, the poetical, a collection of ancient Scandinavian poems, 21—sketch of poems from, 26 et seq.—the prose Edda, 22.
Edinburgh Review, notice of some criticisms on Prussian political economy and the American tariff in, 386 et seq.
Education, important change in the system of, demanded, 294—circumstances under which a zeal for improvement in, has arisen, 295—state of different classes in relation to the means of, 295—improvement of in England and on the continent, 296—application of facts, drawn from the state of things in foreign countries, to this, 299—many of the deficiencies in, do not exist here, 300—bearing of the course of, on the future pursuits of life, considered, 302—proper object of a preparatory course of, stated, 303—objections to the study of languages as a part of, noticed, 303—change in the system of, proposed at Amherst College, 305—doubts with regard to the good effect of, 306—proposal for a plan of, in our colleges, 309—proper object and purpose of, 489—whether the modern modes of, are superior to the ancient, 490—variety of studies attended to in modern times, 491—remark of Johnson on refining

- in, 491—Mr Willard's opinions with regard to, stated, 492.
- Eloquence*, early perfection acquired in, 315.
- England*, character of the aristocracy of, 122—of the mercantile class of, 123.
- English language*, importance of the etymology of, 437—various quarters whence it has been derived, 438 et seq.—affinity of, to the Saxon, 443.
- Etymology*, importance of, in English dictionaries, 437—its claims not generally allowed, 438—causes of the contempt, into which it has fallen, 439—considerations tending to show the value of, 440 et seq.—governing principles of, as stated by Dr Webster, 441—illustrations of the rules of, 446—importance of the history of words to, 448—use of, in settling the meaning of words, 453—examples of, from Webster's Dictionary, 455 et seq.—unsatisfactory examples of, from Webster, 457.
- Europe*, continent of, probable late geological formation of, 279.
- Eusebius*, testimony of, with regard to the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews, 238.
- Evidence*, historical, nature and means of judging of, 321 et seq.
- F.
- Feud*, etymology and original meaning of, 455.
- Flint*, Timothy, merit of, as a writer, 80—his Geography &c. of the Mississippi Valley, reviewed, 80—observations of, on the passage of the Rocky Mountains, 83—his account of a species of clay-stone in the Mississippi Valley, 84—of its diseases, 85—of its trees and shrubs, 86—of the cypress, 89—of the cane-brakes, 90—of the zizania aquatica, 92—of a species of nymphæa, 93—of the camelion, 94—the Indian population, 95—the population of the West, 96—of its natural character, 96—its religion, 97—his account of the formation of a new state within the limits of N. Carolina, 100.
- Florida*, live oak timber in, 89.
- Follen*, Dr, his German Grammar commended, 187.
- France*, state and progress of education in, 297—influence of the missionaries of, upon the Indians, 357.
- Frankland*, foundation of a new state by the name of, in the territory of N. Carolina, 100.
- Franklin*, James, his Present State of Hayti, reviewed, 150—his account of the present state of this island, 164.
- Franklin*, Dr, kind of influence exerted by, 49.
- G.
- Gardeners*, a secret political society of females in Italy, 72.
- Geijer*, history of Sweden by, 37.
- Gentleman*, Adventures of a, 418—applications of the term, 420.
- Geology*, indisposition to theories with regard to, at the present day, 265—indications of a tendency towards the Huttonian theory of, 266—internal heat of the earth, from the temperature of mines and the heat of volcanoes, affords ground for a new theory of, 270—application of this theory to the explanation of the principal facts of, 277—sketch of Scrope's new theory of, 281—another new theory of, 287—tendency of geologists to these theories, 290.
- Georgia*, Duke of Saxe-Weimar's remark on, 245.
- German literature and language*, cultivation of, in America, 189.
- Gerry*, Elbridge, Austin's Life of, reviewed, 37—his extended agency in public affairs, 41—his oration on taking his second degree, 45—elected a member of the Congress of 1774 at Watertown, 45—nature of the talent and influence of, 50—narrow escape of, from the British troops, 50—his view of the importance of the naval strength of the country, 51—preamble of, to an act to authorize privateering, 52.
- Gibbon's Decline and Fall*, 312.
- Goths*, first irruption of, from the North, 19.
- Gray*, quotation from, relating to the Runic characters, 25.
- Greece*, language, literature, &c. of, 317 et seq.—uncertainty of the histories of, 325.

H.

Hancock, John, letter of, to Mr Gerry, 50.

Hayti, review of Malo's and Franklin's works upon, 150—comparative credit of them, 151—state of, under Petion and Christophe, 152 et seq.—revolution at Cape François, and death of the emperor of, 155—entire union of, under Boyer, 150—attempts of France to recover the possession of, 158 et seq.—arrangement between, and France, concluded by the Baron de Mackau, 161—general dissatisfaction with the treaty in, 162—Franklin's account of the present state of, 164—tabular view of the exports of, 169.

Heat, central of the earth, evidences of, 286.

Hebrew, Webster on the trilateral roots of, 451.

Hebrews, Epistle to the, Commentary on, reviewed, 134—authorities for attributing it to Saint Paul stated, 135—in Egypt, 135—in the eastern church, 138—in the western, 139—doubts with regard to the author of arising out of the controversy of the Montanists, 143—judgment of the Greek church concerning, 145—nature of the objections urged against the authorship of St Paul, 144—causes which might give rise to the peculiar style of the epistle, 146.

Heeren, A. H. L., his History of the states of Antiquity, 186—sketch of the life of, 190—his early fondness for history, 191—early predilection for liberal principles, 192—influence of Heyne and Spittler upon, 192—refuses a diplomatic situation, and remains at Göttingen as a lecturer, 193—his travels, and friendship with Cardinal Borgia, 194—failure of an edition of Stobæus by, 196—publication of his work on the states of antiquity, 196—becomes professor of history at Göttingen, 197—his lectures on statistics, 198—on geography and ethnography, 198—his mode of lecturing, 199—his taste for poetry, 199—excellences and peculiar merits of his historical works, 200—his attention to commerce and colonization as matters of history, 202—liberal spirit manifested in his works, 202.

Heyne, influence of, on Heeren, 192.

History, division of, into purely philosophical and narrative, 125—of the states of antiquity by Heeren, 186—inducements to the study of, in general, 188—remarks concerning the truth of, 188—on epitomes of, 202—common neglect in, of commerce and colonization, 202—ancient and modern, comparative merit of, 320—value of depends upon its certainty, 320—the principal fountains of; tradition and contemporary relations, 321—nature, and mode of judging, of the evidence of, 322—materials and credibility of ancient, 323—slow advances of, towards truth, even in Greece and Rome, 329—peculiar advantages of modern times in respect to materials for, 330—spirit of criticism with regard to modern, 333—deficiency of the ancients in the philosophy of, 333—and causes of this deficiency, 335.

Horses, force of traction of, applied to rail roads, 183—comparison of, with steam, 183.

Hunt, Leigh, his work on Lord Byron and his Contemporaries, reviewed, 1—his unjustifiable treatment of Lord Byron, 2.

Humphreys, General, poems of, 107.

Hutton, difference between the theory of, and that of Cordier and Scrope, 286.

I.

Iceland, colony founded in, 20—chronicles of, as materials for history, 34.

Indian population of the United States, strict provisions of the government with regard to, 95.

Indians, American, interesting question of the civilization and conversion of, still undetermined, 355—present state of religious belief among, 356—influence exerted upon, under the Spanish dominion, 356—by the French missionaries, 357—intercourse of the New England settlers with, 358—wars with, 358—Roger Williams's account of, and remarks on the conversion of, 361—efforts for the conversion of, in

- New England, 362—state and number of converts among, in 1678, 363—results of all the previous efforts for the conversion of, 364—present prospects of the civilization and conversion of, 365—difficulties in the attempt arising out of the circumstances and situation of, 365—tendency of, to go back to the hunter's state, 366.
- Inundations*, proofs of many violent and extensive ones having taken place on the earth, 283.
- Irenæus*, testimony of, with regard to the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews, 139—his connexion with the western church, 143.
- Irving*, Washington, literary reputation of, 104—has established the first purely literary reputation of the first order in America, 110—influence of his example upon American authors, 111—his superiority in style to every other author of the age, 113—its approach in harmony to poetry, 114—character of his writings exclusively poetical, 114—notice of his Salmagundi, 116—of his Knickerbocker, 117—his Sketch Book, 119—changes of his style in his works published abroad, 119—failure in his account of English character and manners, 121—his too favorable description of the British aristocracy, 122—difference between his Life of Columbus and his preceding works, 125—remarks on his Life of Columbus, 127—its superiority to other contemporary works of the same class, 132.
- Italy*, etymological derivation of from vitulus, a calf, 348.
- J.
- Jefferson*, President, kind of influence exerted by, 49—Duke of Saxe-Weimar's visit to, 244—mission sent by, to France before the rupture of the treaty of Amiens, 400.
- Jesuit* missionaries, influence of, upon the Indians, 358.
- Johnson*, his Dictionary not perfect for the present state of the language, 436—remarks of, on education, 489, 491, 492—anecdote of, 494.
- Justin Martyr*, his testimony with regard to the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews, 138.
- K.
- Knickerbocker's* New York, character of, 117.
- L.
- Labatut* a French officer, employed by the government of Carthage, 209—his jealousy of Bolivar, 209.
- Labor* the proper measure of value, 383.
- Lagerbrink*, Prof., his History of Sweden, 37.
- Languages*, manner in which diversities of, originate, 442—changes of words in, how effected, 443—affinity or relationship of, to each other, 450—affinity of the eastern and western, Webster's theory of, 450—extensive comparison of in Webster's American Dictionary, 452—written and spoken, entire distinctness of, 499.
- Lastoguanes*, defeat of the royal Spanish troops at, 217.
- Letters*, rule with regard to the property in, 53.
- Letters*, cognate, in etymology, 441.
- Letters* on Clerical Manners and Habits, by Dr Miller, contents of, 505—their general applicability, 507—want of condensation of, 508.
- Livingston*, Mr, minister of the United States to France, his failure to obtain indemnity for commercial spoiliations, 399—his doubts of the sincerity of the advances of the French in the negotiation for Louisiana, 412.
- London*, establishment of a new university in, 298.
- Louisiana*, Marquis de Marbois' History of the Cession of, 389—obtained by Napoleon from Spain by the treaty of St Ildephonso, 397—irritation in the United States on the cession of, to France, 398—circumstances preceding and leading to the cession of, to the United States, 400 et seq.—discussion between Napoleon and his ministers with regard to the cession of, 404—negotiation of the French with the American ministers relating to, 412—obscurity with regard to the boundaries of, 413—conditions of the cession with relation to the future condition of the inhabitants of, 414—stipulations concerning the price of, 415.

M.

- McCulloch*, Prof., severe remarks of Malthus on some opinions of, 369—correctness of these opinions of, 370.
- Mackau*, Baron de, concludes an arrangement between France and Hayti, 161.
- Mahometans*, the aggressors in their wars with Europe, 131.
- Malaria*, origin of, 85—its influence on the inhabitants of bluffs, 85.
- Malo*, M. Charles, his History of Hayti, reviewed, 150.
- Malthus*, T. R., his Definitions in Political Economy, 368—spirit manifested by, towards opposing writers, 368—mistakes of, in his remarks on the transfer of capital, shown, 370—opinions of, on the objects of exchange and sale, examined, 372 et seq.—attempt of, to remove the causes of obscurity in political economy, 377—doubts of the efficacy of his preliminary definitions, 378—his defects as a writer for this purpose, 379—inaccuracy and looseness in his definitions, 380—his definition of wealth, 380—of value, 383—his opinions on the measure of value, 384.
- Marbois*, M. Barbe, his character, services, and connexion with the American revolution, 389—present situation of, 389—his History of the Louisiana treaty, reviewed, 389—plan of his work, 390—extracts from his preliminary discourse on the government and constitution of the United States, 391—his account of discussions between Napoleon and his ministers concerning Louisiana, 400 et seq.—reflections of, on the value of Louisiana to the United States, and its future prospects, 417.
- Massachusetts*, Report on rail road in, 522—routes projected in, and facts relating to them, 522 et seq.—the amount of business, and comparative cheapness on these roads, 527 et seq.
- Marriage*, Mr Owen's regulation concerning, 253.
- Matrimony*, directions to a theological student on, 512.
- Mechanics'* Institution, establishment of, 296.
- Menander* upon Panegyric, Heeren's edition of, 194.
- Methodius*, authority of, with regard to the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews, 138,
- Mill*, Mr, his opinion on money, examined, 372.
- Miller*, Rev. Samuel, his Letters on Clerical Manners and Habits, reviewed, 503—his character as an author, 503—objects of his present work, 504—its contents, 505—his style, method, temper, and spirit, 506—general applicability of his works to all young men, 507—his diffusive habit of writing, 508—his directions on several points of clerical manners and habits, considered, 509 et seq.—quotations from, on various points of ministerial manners and qualities, 515.
- Mind*, the philosophy of, neglect of it in the present age, 4.
- Mines*, inferences drawn from an examination of the temperature of, 267.
- Minister* of the Gospel, question concerning the manners of, 509—on the presence of, at certain amusements, 509.
- Miranda*, Gen., commander of republican troops in Venezuela, 207—is made Dictator by the Congress, 208—capitulates and is imprisoned, 208.
- Missionary* enterprises, question with regard to the mode of operation in, 355—to the American Indians, of the Spanish and French, 356 et seq.—of the New England colonists, 360—difficulties in the way of, 365—importance of intelligence in those engaged in, 367.
- Mississippi* Valley, Flint's Geography and History of, reviewed, 80—passage from, across the great western ridge, 83—minerals of, 84—division of the climate of, 84—diseases of, 85—trees and shrubs of, 86—animals of, 93—present population, character, and religion of, 96.
- Modern* times, advantage of, in regard to certainty of history, 330—superior

- critical skill of, 337—comparison of, with the ancients, 338—greater variety of studies in, 491.
Money, question whether it be the direct object of traffic, considered, 392.
Monroe, President, special mission of, to France, in conjunction with Chancellor Livingston, 400.
Montanists, a sect of Christians, 142,—controversies relating to, 143 et seq.
Monteverde, Spanish royalist commander in Venezuela, 208—enormities practised by, 214—his total defeat by Bolivar, 217.
Morillo, arrival of, in America, for the reduction of New Granada, 224.

N.

- Napoleon*, acquisition of Louisiana by, 397—nature of the ambition of, 400—anecdote of the intercourse of, with foreign ambassadors, 401—discussions of with his ministers, relating to the cession of Louisiana, 404—draws up the article of the treaty providing for the rights of the inhabitants, 414—interest taken by, in the treaty, 417.
Nepos, errors of, as a historian, 337.
New Granada, notices of the revolution in, 208 et seq.
New Harmony, account of the Duke of Saxe-Weimar's visit to, 249.
New Lebanon, Duke of Saxe-Weimar's visit to the Shakers of, 238.
New Orleans, Duke of Saxe-Weimar's account of, noticed, 248.
New York, Knickerbocker's History of, 117—great canal of, doubts of its great profit, 233—Duke of Saxe-Weimar's visit to, 239.
North Carolina, cession of the territory of Tennessee to the United States by, 100—contest of, with the new state of Frankland, 100.
Nymphæa, splendid species of, in the Valley of the Mississippi, 93.

O.

- Oak*, live, of the Valley of the Mississippi, 87—importance of, to the navy of the United States, 88—quantity of, in Florida, 89—and provisions for its protection, 89 et seq.
Ocaña, city of, entered by Bolivar, in 1813, 210.

- Ocean*, flux and reflux of, in consequence of the commotion of earthquakes and volcanoes, 284.
Odin, introduction of the Runic alphabet attributed to, 24—inculcates superstitious notions of the magical qualities of, 25—character of, 27, 30—derivation of the first dynasties of the North from, 34.
Offering, The, an American Annual, noticed, 488.
Ohio, rail road between Baltimore and, 166.
Opinion, public, extensive influence of, 331—state of, in ancient times, 331.
Origen, opinion of, with regard to the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews, considered, 136.
Orthography of the English Language, irregularity of, 470—causes and extent of, 471—proposed changes in, considered, 471, et seq.
Owen, Mr., Duke of Saxe-Weimar's visit to, 249—his opinions and expectations from his system, 251—his regulation concerning marriage, 253.

P.

- Paine*, Robert T., genius of, 108.
Pamphilus, authority of, with regard to the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews, 138.
Pantænus, attributes the Epistle of Hebrews to St Paul, 135.
Past-indefinite tense, Dr Webster's objection to, 475.
Paul, St, authorities stated for believing him to have been the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews, 135—nature of the objections urged against, 144—circumstances which varied his tone and manner, in different epistles, 145.
Pelham, or the Adventures of a Gentleman, review of, 418—introduction of, quoted, 418—sketch of the story of, 421—of some of the characters of, 423—quotations from, 425 et seq.—remarks and criticism upon, 429—general character of, 433.
Pensacola, Duke of Saxe-Weimar's opinion of, 248.
Petion, President of Hayti, character and death of, 152—policy of, 153.

- Philadelphia*, Duke of Saxe-Weimar's visit to, 240.
- Philaster*, acknowledgment of, concerning Hebrews, 142.
- Philosophy*, history of, deficiency of antiquity in, 333—superiority of the moderns in, 339.
- Piedmont*, movements of the Carbonari in, 65.
- Poetry*, decline of, in the present age, 3—shares neglect in common with other intellectual pursuits, 4—proper subjects and objects of, 6—disrespect for, contributed to by the poets, 7—foolish debate concerning the invariable principles of, 8—faults in the style of, 9—its adaptation to a youthful taste, 10—Wordsworth's peculiar notions on the subjects and language of, 15—quotations of, from Gray, 25—quotations of, from Pollok's Course of Time, 342, 344, 345, 350, 353.
- Poets* of the present day, have unsettled the public taste, 7—their want of high and pure morality, 7—their follies, 8—faults in the style of, 9—Byron placed first among, 11.
- Political Economy*, Malthus on, 368—some questions with regard to important points in, considered, 369 et seq.—attempt of Malthus to remove the obscurity that hangs over, 377—failure of the attempt to do this by definitions, 378 et seq.—wealth, definition of, and controversies concerning, 380 et seq.—of value, 382—and the measure of value, 383 et seq.—distracted state of the modern school of, in England, 388.
- Pollok*, Robert, his Course of Time, a poem, 340—his early death, and genius, 341—his view of human nature not the most favorable for the poet, 348—his description of Byron quoted, 350—of the ocean, 353.
- Prayers* with the sick, proper character of, 517.
- Printing*, invention of, its probable influence on the elegance and finish of composition, 316—and on the materials for and certainty of history, 330.
- Privateering*, in the revolutionary war, act to authorize, 52.
- Professional* education, importance of the study of the classics as a foundation for, 304, et seq.
- Pronunciation*, English, Dr Webster's opinion concerning, 478.
- Prose* and verse, distinction between, 114.
- Providence*, projected rail road from Boston to, 523.
- Prussia*, remarks on the political economy of, in the Edinburgh Review, noticed, 386.
- Public* opinion, universal influence of, 331.
- Public* speaking, agency of, in a revolution, 45.
- Puerto Cabello*, evacuated by the patriots under Bolivar, 208.
- Q.
- Quebec*, Duke of Saxe-Weimar's visit to, 236.
- Quintilian*, method of learning the alphabet recommended by, 497.
- R.
- Rail road*, works on the Baltimore and Ohio, reviewed, 166. See Baltimore.—mode of constructing on solid foundations, 180—and where a temporary structure is advisable, 181—nature of the impediments to, 181—from curvatures in, 181—from ravines and water courses, 182—application of horse and steam power upon, 183—of Massachusetts, present state of the question relating to, 522—facts and estimates determined, 523, et seq.—movement of loads on, 526—of the amount of business and comparative cheapness of transportation on, 527—of the competition of, with other land and water carriage, 528—important to Massachusetts and the neighboring states as a substitute for steam-boat navigation, 529—superior to any inland navigation, 529—more safe and free from interruption than sloop navigation, 529—advantage of, over a canal in greater rapidity, 531—its advantage for conveying passengers equal to that for conveying property, 531—not interrupted by frost, 531—would give new vigor to public indus-

- try and new value to the resources of the state, 531—estimated expense and income of, 532—income of, a perpetual revenue to the state, 532—advantages of, in the increase of business, and increased value of property, 532—advantages of, compared with those of the New York canals, 533 et seq.—objections obviated, 535 et seq.—estimated number of persons who would travel on the proposed route, 536—investigation of directors thoroughly, carefully, and scientifically made, 557.
- Reading*, learning the art of, 497—consequences of the adoption of a foreign alphabet upon, 499.
- Restrepo*, José Manuel, his History of Colombia reviewed, 203.
- Recluse*, etymological derivation of, 446.
- Religion*, state of, in the Western Country, 97.
- Revolution*, American, increasing interest of, 37—materials for the history of, 40—means by which it was prepared for, 44 et seq.
- Rhyme* not essential to poetry, 114.
- Rhythm*, nature of, 114.
- Rice*, wild, in the Valley of the Mississippi, 92.
- Rocky Mountains*, Flint's remarks on the passage of, 83.
- Rome*, language and literature of, 319—uncertainty of the early history of, 327—sources and materials for the history of 327 et seq.—superiority of, to the Greeks in the qualities common to both as historians, 335.
- Runic* alphabet and characters, introduction of, into the North of Europe, 24—extent of the use of, 25—magic qualities attributed to, 25.
- S.
- Sagas*, Scandinavian works, account of one, 35.
- Salmagundi*, notice and character of, 116.
- Santa-Fedists*, objects of the society of, 46.
- Saxe-Weimar*, Travels of the Duke of, reviewed, 226—general character of his book, 227—his account of his feelings on arriving at Boston, 228—of his visit to President Adams, 229—his opinion of the appearance of the prosperity of the country, 230 of his general impressions of Boston, 231—his journey through Massachusetts to the West, 232—his doubts of the great profits of the New York canal, 233—extract from his account of his descent of the St Lawrence, 235—visit to Quebec, 236—his remarks on military positions in the Northern section of the country, 237—his remark on the treason of Arnold, and execution of André, 239—his visit to West Point, 239—to New York, 240—to Philadelphia, 240—his opinion of Penitentiaries, 240—account of his introduction to the President of the United States, 241—visit to Baltimore, 242—to Washington, 243—to Virginia, 243—to Mr Jefferson, 244—to Charleston, 245—to Georgia, 245—account of his visit to the Creek Indians, 245—residence at New Orleans, 248—his visit to Mr Owen's settlement at New Harmony, 249—general favorable impressions from his work, 253.
- Saxo Grammaticus*, one of the oldest Danish annalists, 32—indifferent value of, 33.
- Scandinavia*, mythology, poetry, and history of, 18—earliest records of the history of, 19—cultivation of the language of, in Iceland, 21—the Skalds, the poets and historians of, 21—the poetical Edda, a collection of the ancient poems, 21—the prose Edda of, 22—introduction and use of Runic characters in, 24—no evidence of books in, before Christianity, 25—sketch of a legend of, 26—notice of materials for the history of, 35.
- Skalds*, at once the poets and historians of Scandinavia, 21—collection of the traditional poems of, 21.
- Scott*, Sir Walter, style of, 113.
- Scrope*, Poulett, on Volcanoes, and a New Theory of the Earth, 265, 276—his remarks on the origin of unstratified rocks, 280—sketch of his new theory, 281—its difference from that of Hutton, 286.
- Serpents*, in the Valley of the Mississippi, 94.
- Shakers* of New Lebanon, Duke of Saxe-

- Weimar's visit to, 238.
Sigfusson, Sæmund, his collection of the poems of the Skalds, 21—his share in its composition, 24.
Silliman, Professor, description of a new theory of the earth, 288—objections to it, 289.
Skalda, a continuation of the prose Eda of Scandinavia, 23.
Slavery, in the United States, Duke of Saxe-Weimar's remark on, 242.
Smith, Adam, definitions of, their excellence, 382.
Southard, Mr, secretary of the navy, on live oak timber, 88.
Souvenir, The Atlantic, noticed, 486.
Spanish dominion, influence of, upon the American Indians, 356.
Spelling, common method of teaching, complained of, 494.
Spittler, influence of, upon Heeren, 193.
Squirrel, etymological derivation of, 447.
Squirrels, migrations of, 92.
St Ildophonso, Louisiana ceded by Spain to France by the treaty of, 397.
St Lawrence, archipelago of the, 235.
Stationery, etymological derivation of, 446.
Statistics, notice of Heeren's lectures on, 198.
Steam-boats in the western country, 97.
Steam power, application of, on rail roads, 183.
Stobæus, Heeren's edition of, 196.
Stramonium, its abundance in the western States, 92.
Stuart, Moses, Professor, his Commentary on Hebrews, reviewed, 134—his statement of facts with regard to the author of the epistle, 141—high character of his work, 149.
Suhm, the great Danish historian, works of, 36.
Sweden, works on the history of, 36.

T.

- Talisman*, The, an American Annual, noticed, 483.
Tariff, American, notice of, in the Edinburgh Review, 386.
Tennessee, formation of a State, called Frankland, in the territory of, 100.
Tertullian, testimony of, with regard to the author of Hebrews, 140.

- Token*, The, an American Annual, noticed, 486.
Torffæus arraigns the authenticity of Saxo Grammaticus, 33—attempts to settle Danish chronology, 33.
Torres, president of the congress of New Granada, an early friend to Bolivar, 211, 217.
Tradition, oral, as a means of transmitting history, 34.
Traditions one of the principal fountains of history, 321—character essential to the plausibility of, 321—great use made of, by the ancient historians, 323.
Trees and shrubs of the Valley of the Mississippi, 86.
Tuesday, etymology and original meaning of, 459.

U.

- United States*, strict policy of, towards the Indian population with, regard to intemperance, 95—causes of the backward state of elegant literature in, 105—Washington Irving the first to establish a purely literary reputation in, 110—influence of his success upon the other writers of, 111—increase of attention to works for interior transportation in, 166—importance of internal improvements to the prosperity of, 168—Duke of Saxe-Weimar's Travels in, 226—character of the officers of the army of, 239—state and improvement of education in, 299—remarks in the Edinburgh Review on the tariff of, 386—observations of the Marquis de Marbois on the constitution and government of, 391—excitement in, occasioned by the cession of Louisiana to France, 398—difficulties of, with France, arising out of spoliation on American commerce, 399—history of the negotiations of the ministers of, in obtaining the cession of Louisiana, 412.
Universities, English and foreign, 299 et seq.

V.

- Value* and wealth, distinction between, 382—Malthus' definition of, 383—Adam Smith on the measure of, 383.

Venezuela, revolution in, in 1810, 206
—events of the contest between the patriots and royalists in, 207—subversion of, by the royalists, 208—entered by Bolivar from New Granada, 214—enormities practised by the royalist commander in, 214—delivered from his authority by Bolivar in 1813, 217—again subdued by the Spanish, 219.

Vermont, State of, affords a successful exemplification of the great principles of our democracy, 338.

Virginia, Duke of Saxe-Weimar's visit to, 243—his remark on the aristocratical spirit of, 343—of the university of, 244.

Volcanoes, Scrope's Considerations on, 265—afford a proof of the internal heat of the earth, 269—explanation of the phenomena of, by a new theory of the earth, 271—and by a reference to the action of water on certain metallic bases, 272—identity of their causes with those of earthquakes, 273—sufficiency of the operation of, to account for the geological appearance of the earth's surface, 277—made the foundation of a new theory of the earth, 281.

W.

Washington, nature of the talents and influence of, 49—Chantrey's statue of, 230.

Wealth, imperfect and inelegant definition of, by Malthus, 380—frivolous controversies with regard to the meaning of the term, 381.

Webster, Noah, LL. D., his American Dictionary of the English Language, reviewed, 433—objections which have been made to his plan, 434—his perseverance and firmness of purpose, 435—claims of his work to attention, 436—governing principles of etymology as stated by, 441—sketch of his Introduction and of his opinions on the affinities of language, 450—his investigation of the Hebrew triliteral roots, 452—great extent to which he has carried the comparison of languages, 452—various examples from his work cited, 453 et seq.—evidence of his opinions not always obvious, 456—instances of unsatisfactory etymology, 457—general character of the etymological part of his work, 459—number of words in his vocabulary, seventy thousand, 459—new words introduced by, 461—definitions of, their increased number, 464—examples of his mode of defining, 465—aims at greater fullness of definition, 465—and greater discrimination, 466—his proposed variations of orthography, 471—opinion of, on pronunciation, 473—on accentuation, 474—improvements in the grammar and syntax of, 474—his objections to the past-indefinite, 475—value and importance of his labors, 478.

Wernerian theory of the earth, present tendency to doubt concerning, 266.

Western States, Flint's Geography and History of, 80—rapid growth of, 82—present population of, 96—national character of the people of, 96—state of manners in, 97—religious character of, 97—interest of, in the plans of internal transportation, 168—excitement in, occasioned by the suspension of the right of entrepôt at N. Orleans, 398.

West Point, great advantage of, to the American army, 239.

Whiskey, use of, by the Indians, 95.

White, Colonel, delegate from Florida, on live oak in that territory, 90.

Willard, Rev. Mr. his elementary books on education, reviewed, 489—his views of the nature and objects of education, 492 et seq.—remarks of, on the common method of teaching spelling, 495—account of his publications, 496.

Williams, Roger, tract of, on the Indian language, 360—his account of the disposition of the Indians and the probability of their conversion, 361.

Wil, a German Carbonarist, biography of, 58—adventures of, 59, et seq.—in Switzerland, 61—his connexion with various revolutionary movements, 61—is appointed Inspector General of the Carbonari, 62—his arrest in Piedmont, 65—and imprisonment, 66 et seq.—his attempt at starvation, 73—is released by Austrian authority, 74—residence at Milan, 74 et seq.—claimed by different governments, 75—is imprisoned and again escapes, 76.

Words, new, frequent introduction of, in England, 462.

Wordsworth, character of, as a poet, 15—his peculiar notions on the subjects and language of poetry, considered, 15 et seq.

Written and spoken language, effects of the difference between, upon learning to read, 499.

Written discourse, influence of, on a people, 45.

Z.

Zizania aquatica, abundance of, in the Valley of the Mississippi, 92.